The legacy of Magnoni and the owner before him, Charles Dyas, can be seen in the old pictures and ticket stubs framed on the walls. The single-screen drive-in opened in June of 1954 and was operated by the Dyas family until 1994, when it was bought by Magnoni.

"Chas and Ron were adamant the popcorn be made fresh every night," said Shelley Bottomley, who spoke as if both of the late operators were still in the room.

The drive-in has been dark since last year. "The Drive-ins don't deal with numer-
